Church Universal

The great acts of Pope Leo were conceived and executed in such a manner that the mere enunciation of them impressed the whole world, and won the appliance of those outside as well as those within the Catholic church. Pins X prefers to drop the seed quietly into the ground and to give it tone to grow. It is over three years now since he issued his famous "Motu proprio" on church music, and had you asked the opinion of many competent persons here during the interval on the results of it. of it in Italy, you would have been fold that the reform was still-born. But the seed was growing all the time. But the seed was growing all the time, and now, within a month, congresses of sacred music have been held in quick succession in Padua, Perugia and Bergame, which, had they done nothing else, would have furnished significant evidence of the interest croked for real church music by the Holy Pather's reform.

But there was one siriking feature of these congresses which has an interest for other countries besides Italy. In all three of them it was agreed that effects should be made to induce the congregations to join in the limitgical singing at divine service. At Gergama, for instance, the following resolution was unanimously adopted:

"The congress, convinced of the ne-
